World's First Organic Spa

And it's right here in Malaysia! Modelled after the 18th century medieval Haut Koenigsburg castle in Alsace, France, The Chateau Spa & Organic Wellness Resort in Bukit Tinggi, Pahang, claims to be first organic wellness destination spa resort in the world. The first of its kind in Malaysia, The Chateau is classified as a premier spa destination where discerning clients can expect a high level of service in an idyllic cool hilly setting.

As the world's first organic spa, guests are pampered with Voya spa products, organic amenities, organic towels and linens.

In line with its organic theme, the spa line of choice offers a range of organic products certified by both the US Department of Agriculture and the Soil Association that is said to not only benefit the user, but also protects the Earth. So, book yourself into the spa and head for the hills for a healthy dose of pampering.

Not for Recovering Alcoholics

At the beer spa in the Czech Republic, your treatment begins with a 20-minute submergence in a bathtub full of beer in the cellar of a family owned brewery in Chodovar.

This is followed by a 25-minute bed rest in a dimly lit relaxation room under a fleece blanket and a half hour to 50-minute massage.

A special bath ingredient is Dark Bathing Beer mixed with warm mineral water, enriched by active beer yeast and some mixed dehydrated crushed herbs. The treatment helps to soften and regenerate the skin as it contains a wide range of vitamins, proteins and saccharides. Not only is the treatment good for face and hair, it also relieves muscle tension. Sipping a glass of unpasteurised beer in the process apparently does wonders for your digestion.
